Architects bestow awards

By Chris Barrett
PBN Staff Writer

Eight Rhode Island projects have been honored by the American Institute of Architects Rhode Island chapter.

The association of professional architects bestowed the awards in December after a jury convened at The Towers in Narragansett to judge them. The seven-member jury gave honor awards for an addition to an historic Cape on a coastal farm in Little Compton, designed by Bohlin Cywinski Jackson; the new St. Bernard Church in Wickford, designed by Durkee, Brown, Viveiros, & Werenfels and the Church of St. Gregory the Great in Portsmouth, designed by Newport Collaborative Architects Inc.

The company also handed out merit awards for an addition to a residence on the East Side of Providence designed by 3six0; the Art & Design of the 20th Century Rhode Island School of Design exhibit designed by Matter Practice; the Old Stone House Spa & Restaurant and Old Stone House Inn in Little Compton, designed by 3six0; and the Plant and Cuban Revolution in Providence, designed by Icon.

For information about the awards, visit www.aia-ri.org.
